Skylab Makes Its Debut in Space

On May 14, 1973, America launched its first space station, better known as "Skylab," an unmanned space craft that orbited Earth from 1973 until 1979. NASA launched and operated this vehicle, which included a solar observatory and workshop onboard. A range of scientific experiments were conducted on Skylab, as various crews were sent to the station over the years. Hundreds of photos of Earth were taken from Skylab and sent back to NASA. While Skylab was integral in obtaining data from space about Earth and the sun, it disintegrated in 1979 while entering Earth's atmosphere. Debris was seen in Western Australia, and all hopes of refurbishing the Skylab for future NASA projects were dashed.

Mary Dubose is originally from Detroit, Michigan, where she was raised in a family of eleven children. Mary quickly found her niche in the medical field (which aligns with her caring nature) as a Registered X-Ray Technician. Mary served her post at General Motors Corporation faithfully for nearly 30 years. During those years she was blessed to give birth to her only child; Ivan. Her love and nurturing continued as she has helped instill her unique qualities in her two grandchildren; Blair and Ivonna.

Mary's legacy and giftings can best be seen in her ability to advocate on behalf of those that don't have a voice. Her no-nonsense demeanor and tender heart has been the guiding principle that has endeared and touched the hearts of many. Mary Dubose's life to this point can best be summarized by saying, 'To know her is to truly love her.'

Happy Mother's Day - May 14

In the U.S., Mother's Day was first suggested in 1872 by Julia Ward Howe (who wrote the words to the Battle Hymn of the Republic) as a day dedicated to peace. Howe held organized Mother's Day meetings in Boston every year.

In 1907, Anna Jarvis from Philadelphia began a campaign to establish a national Mother's Day in May. In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson finally proclaimed Mother's Day a national holiday to be held each year on the second Sunday of May.
